Background

Learners eligible for special education services are entitled to Specially Designed Instruction (SDI) to address their unique needs and to ensure access to the general curriculum so they can meet educational standards. This includes adapting as appropriate to the needs of the individual learner, the content, methodology, or delivery of instruction to address his/her unique needs that result from a disability and to ensure access to the general curriculum, so that he/she can meet the educational standards that apply to all children (IAC 41.39). In many cases, learners with disabilities will need supports including targeted and/or intensive interventions. This may include accommodations, modifications, services, and supports within and across a continuum of educational supports. SDI can occur in any educational setting and addresses all of the unique educational needs of a learner eligible for special education. Iowa has developed an SDI Framework that is intended to engage educators and families in diagnosing, designing, and delivering special education services to best meet the needs of learners ages 3-21 with disabilities and a range of educational needs.

The following foundational beliefs are of key importance as we work together to improve our special education outcomes, services, and Specially Designed Instruction (SDI) for our learners here in Iowa:

- Learners receiving special education services are general education learners first and always.
- Highly effective special education services and outcomes are dependent on highly effective Universal Instruction and a school-wide intervention system.
- Effective SDI is designed through collaboration between families and highly qualified educators.
- SDI is delivered by special education and general education teachers and professionals in various settings across the day.
- The state and local standards, competencies, and expectations in all domains that apply to each learner drive diagnosis, design and delivery of SDI.
- Highly effective SDI flows from high quality and specific assessment information.
- SDI supports learners to use tools, materials and strategies to access Iowa Core Standards and reach grade-level aligned goals.
- SDI helps learners to address their unique needs as a result of the individual's disability.

As outlined in Iowa's SDI Framework, effective SDI occurs when the Key Components and Critical Features are evident in practice—when learners with disabilities progress toward and meet grade level standards, and are actively engaged in their learning across educational settings. Decades of neuroscience and educational research has shown that engagement is the gateway to cognition and that the social, emotional, and cognitive dimensions of learning are deeply linked. However, many students with disabilities and genetic differences struggle with social engagement compared to their peers without disabilities, and thus need specially designed instruction, accommodations, and modifications to foster social engagement. Historically, if instruction was provided, it focused on teaching specific social skills and was provided separately from academic instruction. But research now emphasizes the critical relationship between social engagement and academic instruction and the need for intentional consideration of students' social and emotional needs and skills which impact their ability to learn, through embedded instruction in inclusive settings. In order to foster social engagement and inclusive learning environments, it is important to understand why some children may or may not be compelled to actively engage in the classroom and to then make appropriate modifications and accommodations to foster engagement. Therefore, educators need to have access to professional development and coaching to assist them with learning and applying evidence-based strategies for instruction, classroom management, and active social engagement to artfully weave these elements throughout the day, not just occasionally. This purposeful concentration on integrating academic, social, emotional, and cognitive development can create a positive, engaging, and inclusive learning environment for every student.

Policy guidance from the U.S. Department of Education Office of Special Education and Rehabilitative Services, titled Positive, Proactive Approaches to Supporting Children with Disabilities: A Guide for Stakeholders, states:

“Every child should have access to a high-quality education provided in a safe, supportive, and predictable[1] learning environment free from discrimination, filled with healthy, trusting relationships, and one that ensures their social, emotional, and academic growth and development. Children with disabilities have historically faced systemic barriers to accessing their education and ... have faced greater challenges to their social, emotional, and academic development and success.[2] It is therefore crucially important for schools and early childhood programs to support the social, emotional, academic, and behavioral needs of children with disabilities; consider the harmful effects that inappropriate and ineffective discipline can have on child development and outcomes; and invest in alternative strategies and supports to address learning and behavioral needs.”

“Given the negative outcomes associated with, and the disparities in the use of, exclusionary discipline,[10] SEAs, LEAs, schools, and early childhood programs should identify ways to significantly reduce their use.[11] ... Although there may be instances when a child's behavior, such as causing physical harm to self or others, warrants exclusionary disciplinary action, preventing the need before it occurs can be an effective first step in most situations. Proactive systematic approaches that focus on instruction and supports, and that are implemented with fidelity...are likely to address disparities; reduce the use of exclusionary discipline; and result in positive developmental, academic, and behavioral outcomes for all children including those with disabilities.[13] Further, in the Office of Special Education and Rehabilitative Services' (OSERS') view, exclusionary discipline should not be used for non-violent offenses such as, tardiness, absenteeism, or subjective offenses such as defiance or disrespect...”

“Developing positive early learning environments and school climates while implementing evidence-based strategies and improving...program and school discipline policies and practices, starts with an investment in building the necessary expertise within the educator workforce. A critical step in addressing disparities, significantly reducing the use of exclusionary discipline and aversive practices and improving outcomes for children with disabilities is providing educators with resources, strategies, and professional knowledge to foster a positive school climate. When schools and early childhood programs foster climates of inclusion, safety, and belonging, while implementing evidence-based practices, the use of exclusionary discipline and aversive practices (such as restraint or seclusion) can be reduced significantly.[16]”

Considering Iowa’s SDI Framework, the importance of social emotional engagement for cognitive development, and the need for proactive systemic approaches that focus on instruction and supports to address social-emotional behavioral needs; the Department of Education is seeking one or more vendors to provide professional learning packages and a multi-year plan to build the necessary expertise within the educator workforce for specially designed instruction for social-emotional behavior through a positive, proactive approach.

Objectives

The State of Iowa is seeking one or more vendors to provide a multi-year plan to build the necessary expertise within the educator workforce to provide specially designed instruction for social-emotional behavior.

Proposed plan should include:

1. Proactive systematic approaches that focus on individualized social-emotional behavioral instruction and supports for students with varying ages and developmental levels;
2. Evidence-based strategies that are aligned with Iowa’s SDI Framework and are based on brain science and are trauma-informed;
3. Strategies for aligning diagnostic information with student-specific programming;
4. Strategies that focus on shifting mindsets and language of adults regarding behavior and adult responses to behavior;
5. Strategies that focus on addressing concerning behaviors that stem from lagging skills for a variety of developmental levels;
6. Strategies to engage students and adults in collaborative and active problem solving processes to improve behavioral outcomes;
7. Intentional strategies to actively involve administrators, para educators, as well as families in the learning process;
8. Supports to help districts engage in interagency planning and service coordination with community providers and other state agencies to ensure coordinated and comprehensive care.
9. Strategies to generalize skills and fade supports as students gain skills, including decision making prompts for teams to consider aligned with best practices;
10. Utilizes research-based adult learning strategies to promote understanding of the participants, active participation, and collaboration;
11. Includes a plan for ongoing coaching, networking, and/or support for educators including teachers and administrators, to implement and reflect on new practices;
12. A plan for scale-up and sustainability that includes collaboratively developing materials with the Iowa Department of Education that align with/incorporate Iowa’s SDI Framework, including building capacity within the Iowa Department of Education to support sustainability of the strategies;
13. Tools and resources to assist with data collection, implementation fidelity, readiness, and sustainability; and
14. Includes a comprehensive evaluation plan, including data collection and analysis.

The State reserves the right to award multiple Agreements following this RFP.
